Dog bite

Yolo County health officials are looking for the owner of a dog involved in a biting incident near Westacre Road and West Capitol Avenue on Monday afternoon, January 26.

An 11-year old child walking home from Westfield Village Elementary School was bit at about 4 p.m. by a "brown and red," short-haired, small dog – possibly a Dachshund. The dog was accompanied by a child.

The dog must be located and examined in order to prevent the child who was bitten from having to undergo rabies treatment.

Anyone with information on the incident is asked to call Yolo County Environmental Health at (530) 666-8646 or Yolo County Animal Services (24 hours a day) at (530) 668-5287. Callers may remain anonymous.

Caseload:

David Rosenberg, presiding judge of the Yolo Superior Court, announced last week that the court handled more cases than ever in 2008.

"The numbers are in," he said in a press statement. "The Yolo Superior Court handles more cases than ever, and our disposition rate is at an all-time high."

The number of new cases filed in 2008 was 45,385 -- a 17 percent jump from the prior year, he reported.

More than 2,000 of those were felony cases, and "these tend to be major, time-consuming cases."

The court disposed 99 percent of those felony cases, added Rosenberg. In 2007, the felony case disposition rate was 2007, and in 2006 it was 87 percent.

The judge said a new calendering system helped in that improvement. In the new system, a specific judicial officer is assigned to each case from start to finish.

"In 2008, our judges presided over 121 criminal jury trials and 12 civil trials, a remarkable number for a court our size," he said. "Because we are prepared to try cases and not delay cases, other cases resolved before trial, and often at an early stage."

School district: budget cut discussion

West Sacramento's school board will hold a special workshop Thursday evening to talk about its budget and possible budget cuts, among other matters.

The workshop is scheduled for 5 p.m. at the headquarters of Washington Unified School District, 930 Westacre Road. The workshop on budget issues will be preceded by a closed-door session on personnel and labor matters.

West Sac chapter of 'MOMS Club' seeks some new members:

By Carrie Fisher Stone

(Author Carrie Fisher Stone is an occasional News-Ledger contributor and a member of the West Sacramento chapter of the "MOMS Club.")

In 2004, West Sacramento resident and mom Dana Vaynberg was eight months pregnant with her first child, and had a desire to connect with other local moms. She discovered the International MOMS Club, a non-profit organization created to help provide support to stay-at-home moms. The MOMS Club has over 2000 chapters in the United States, as well as international chapters; but at that time, no chapter existed in West Sacramento. With help from fellow mom Brandy Boyd, Dana applied to start a local chapter. Hanging fliers throughout the Southport area, Dana and Brandy advertised the first meeting, which took place at Bridgeway Island Park. Twenty-five moms attended, and the MOMS Club of West Sacramento was officially born.

Today, the club has 33 members who have children ranging in age from two months to seven years old. While the majority of them are stay-at-home moms, many also work either full-time or part-time, and a few are self-employed or work from home. Several of the moms are relatively new to West Sacramento, having moved to the city within the last five years, and joined the club as a way to make new friends for both themselves and their children, as well as learn more about the community.

"I was a MOMS Club member in another city prior to moving to West Sacramento," says Rani Balassi, who joined the group a little over one year ago and has a four-year-old son and two-year-old daughter. " Being new here, I knew joining MOMS was the best way to explore the town."

Lauren Spink gave birth to her first child just two months ago. " I am a brand new mom, and didn't have any friends in the area, " she says. "I looked online and found the MOMS Club, and have already made new friends, including a mom who has a baby about the same age as mine. It has been great to be able to share our experiences."

The club schedules monthly activities which vary but often include gatherings at local parks, playdates at members' homes, or outings to the Sacramento Zoo or The Bounce Spot, an indoor inflatable fun center located in West Sacramento. Also, once a month, the club organizes a "MOMS Night Out," when the moms can take a break from the kids and socialize over dinner or a movie.

"I think it's great that everyone is willing to open up their homes and lives for all to share," says Jessica Price, mom to two boys ages two and ten months, and a member since last July. "I love the park activities and am still trying to make it out to one of the field trips."

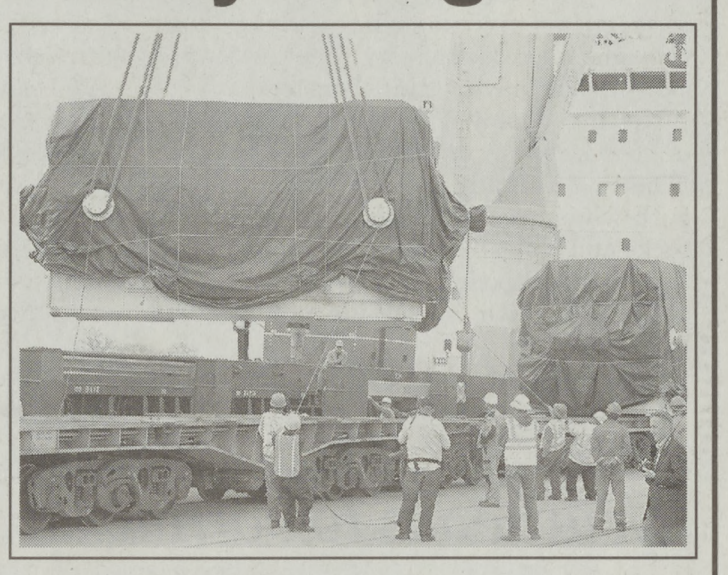
Members keep in frequent communication and get information on upcoming activities through the use of a group email address, which also often serves as a convenient way to swap advice on everything from the best way to tie-dye t-shirts, to recommendations for pediatricians, child care providers and schools.

Many of the moms agree that of the many benefits that come with being a member of the MOMS Club, perhaps the greatest of these is the high level of support they receive from their fellow moms. Lea Litton has been a member of the club for almost four years, and has a four-year-old son with speech delays and an eating disorder. Upon joining the group, she wasn't sure how other members would respond to her son's challenges, but found nothing but support, encouragement and acceptance. "I knew I wanted my son to have kids to play with, and that was all I was really expecting," says Lea. "The help I ended up receiving from the moms was a wonderful added benefit."

Pam Stone, a member of the club for two years and mom to two boys ages four and one, agrees. "I feel like I always have someone to call during the middle of a hectic day who will totally understand why I need a break to chat for a few minutes!", she says. "I've gained invaluable friendships from the club, including a neighbor about five houses down the street from us who I might otherwise never have known, and we're very good friends today. Our kids have become fast friends, too."

The MOMS Club of West Sacramento continually accepts new members. Membership dues cost $25.00 per year, and prospective members may attend two public functions before making a decision about whether or not to join the club. For more information about joining the club, contact them via email at westsacmomsclub@hotmail.com, or call Rani at 916-375-0610.

Heavy lifting



The Port of Sacramento unloaded the largest pieces of equipment in its history last week.

Two 250,000 pound generators made in South Korea were lifted from the BBC Switzerland cargo ship onto rail cars. The generators were headed for installation at a new PG&E power plant 70 miles north of West Sacramento, in the town of Maxwell.

The port began operation in the 1960s and is now controlled by its host city, West Sacramento.

(De)Tour of California: bike race skips West Sac in '09

This year's "Amgen Tour of California" bicycle race won't speed through West Sacramento as it has in previous years. But it will come within a few blocks of West Sac city limits.

The prologue for the race will start Saturday at 1:30 p.m. It will be a 2.4 mile "time trial" in downtown Sacramento. The course will begin at Capitol Mall and 9th Street, and will take in views of the Tower Bridge, Capital Mall and State Capitol.

Cyclists will start one-at-a-time and battle the clock during this prologue. The course should take each cyclist about five minutes to complete. Tour organizers say that while former "Tour de France" champion Lance Armstrong (returning to competitive road cycling) is good at such time trials, the short course is "perhaps better suited to a power rider like Olympic gold medalist Fabian Cancellara," who won last year's prologue.

"Stage 1" of the Tour will follow on Sunday, with riders departing from C & 3rd streets in Davis at noon for a 107.6-mile trek over the coastal range to Santa Rosa. The eight-stage, 750-mile tour will finish Feb. 22 in Escondido.

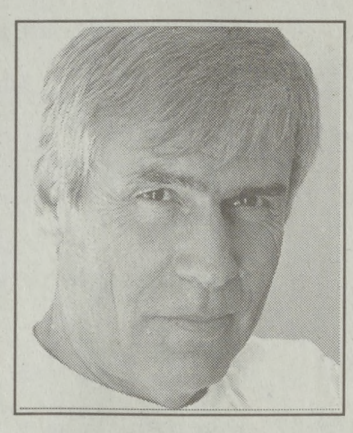
'Dorothy the Goldfish' lives to swim another day

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

My grandson, Riley Stone, is now almost four years old, and he is at that age when little boys start wanting a pet of their very own to play with (not take care of – just play with). But his mother (my daughter) was not exactly thrilled last week when Riley informed his father (Dallas) and her that he wanted a hamster.

"We already have one disgusting animal," my daughter reminded me, referring to Zoey, a female chocolate lab who seems to have one over-riding passion in life – turning the Stone family backyard into a moonscape.

"But Zoey isn't even two years old," I reminded my daughter. "Give her another year or so and I bet she turns out to be a really great dog."

"Well," said my daughter, "all I know is if that stupid dog chews up one more pair of my good dress shoes, she will never see her second birthday!"

So, Carrie and Dallas took little Riley aside and quickly discouraged the idea of him having his very own hamster. But just like parents in similar circumstances have done throughout recorded history, they caved in and said he could have a goldfish instead.

"Getting a goldfish is not as cheap as you might think," my daughter explained to me. "The smallest tank we could find, combined with water treatment, goldfish food, some rocks and a plastic tree ended up costing us close to $80, although Dorothy (the name Riley gave his goldfish) herself was actually only five bucks."

Dorothy, as it turns out, is the name of Elmo's goldfish on Sesame Street. But from time to time, Riley also calls Dorothy by the names Pinocchio and Jack. The important point, however, seems to be that Riley is thrilled to have his very own goldfish happily floating around in her tiny tank in his bedroom — which brings me to my little story.

A few days ago, Riley and his mother went to give Dorothy her regular morning feeding and shockingly discovered that three long, worm-like appendages had somehow sprouted out of her body. Riley immediately asked why there were "twigs" on his beloved goldfish. Once his mother got over having what she described as the "heeby-jeebies", she got on her computer and quickly learned that Dorothy had parasites – anchor worms to be specific. Apparently anchor worms are the result of other living matter being introduced into the tank. When Riley was asked if he had been putting anything into Dorothy's tank other than food, he replied, "Well, yes, I put some little black sticks in there." Noting that there were no little black sticks to be found anywhere, his mother discerned that Riley had indeed done something to the water in Dorothy's tank, but left finding out the specifics for another day. The important thing was to go back to the pet shop and get the medicine recommended for goldfish who have anchor worms, which, by the way, is of course called "Anchor's Away".

Later that evening, I received the following email from my daughter:

"This Anchors Away stuff isn't the only thing we have to do for Dorothy's problem. Listen to this – I just got it off the Internet: Chemical or medicinal treatment might kill the worms but you still have to remove them manually. They don't usually just drop off so it's safer for the fish to just do it that way with no chemicals. Removing anchor worms from goldfish and koi is actually pretty simple. It's good to have another person helping. You also need some tweezers or forcepts to be able to grasp the worms. You can hold the fish in a net over the tank of water or get a shallow tray, bowl or dish that you can lay a wet paper towel on. Just net the fish from the tank and hold it or gently place it on the wet paper towel. Don't squeeze too tightly! Let him wiggle for a few seconds if he needs to and then get back to work when he stops. Work quickly! You want to have the fish back in his tank in less than two minutes. Grasp the anchor worm as close to the fish as possible and pull it out quickly. The worm basically has a bony structure so it will feel hard as you grasp it. Sort of like a very thin fish rib bone. There are little hard barbs at one end that anchor it into the fish, hence their name. You can drop the little nasty worm into some boiling water or alcohol to kill it and then wash it down the commode. Wash, scrub and sterilize your tweezers – and you – and you're done!"

To make a long story short, old Doc Fisher showed up at his daughter's house with tweezers in hand and when the delicate operation was finally over, all but one of Dorothy's yucky little worms had been de-anchored (a final one that had "wormed" its way up into one of Dorothy's fins needed a much more skilled surgeon than me, so it was left for the Anchor's Away chemicals to hopefully kill it).

Upon returning home and reporting all the details of this little story to my wife (who had many goldfish of her own while growing up) I was informed of the proper way to put the whole thing into perspective: "Just make sure Carrie knows where she can quickly get her hands on some backup goldfish that look just like Dorothy, because sooner or later, they all go belly-up and you have to flush them down the toilet."

Never what you would call a real animal-lover, my wife's words still seemed so matter-of-fact, so void of emotion. But something tells me that will no longer be the case when she reads this column, and finds out that Dorothy's surgery was performed with her tweezers.

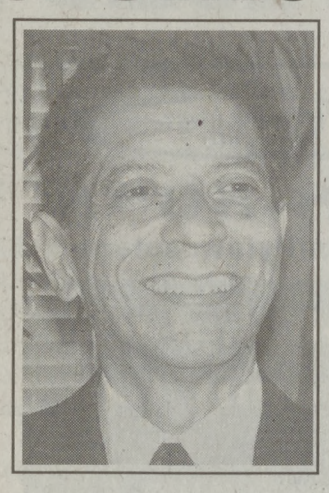
SPORTS INSIDER



By Richard Novoa

By Richard Novoa

It's time to play baseball but with the Major League players heading into spring training the issue of players using performance enhancing drugs and steroids has reared its ugly head- again! Just when you thought it was over – they pull you back into it!

This time it's Alex Rodriguez in the news because the three-time MVP reportedly tested positive for testosterone and anabolic steroid Primobolan. Sports Illustrated reported anonymous sources that A-Rod was one of 104 major league players who tested positive for performance-enhancing drugs in 2003.

It's amazing that every year just before the players report to spring training the media digs up some controversial story usually involving the New York Yankees! This year the story is Joe Torre's book where he tells it all including his time with Rodriquez, who he jokingly refers to as A-Fraud.

In my opinion, it's time for Major League baseball to move on and play ball! It was legal to take the enhancement/steroid drugs before the commissioner's office and the players union stepped in to make it illegal in 2004. It wasn't hard to believe that from 2001 through 2003 average player's statistics were off the hook and so where the player's salaries.

Remember, a few years ago Jose Canseco named players in his book that were on the juice but nobody believed him. Canseco claimed in his book that in 2002, 75 percent of the players in baseball, were using steroids and if you didn't join the bulking up party those fat contracts the Major League owners were handing out like candy would go to the guy trying to replace you in the line-up.

Now, Mark McGuire's brother is writing a book about his brother's outstanding years in baseball and how steroids played an important part in his success. Barry Bonds and Roger Clemens are not in trouble with the law for their usage of drugs but for lying to the grand jury or senate about their involvement or knowledge of steroid use!

Don't get me wrong, drugs don't belong in any sports especially steroids but major league baseball is beating a dead horse-again! MLB has instilled strict rules and serious playing and financial punishments to regulate the use of performance-enhancing drugs. The rules are in place to regulate the nation's favorite pastime so let's move on in 2009 and – play ball!

Amgen Tour of California

The largest cycling event in the United States, the "Tour of California", which is sponsored by Amgen, starts in Sacramento on Saturday with a 2.4-mile prologue. Lance Armstrong, who won seven "Tours de France", will be riding in the prologue which is set to start at 1:30 p.m. in downtown.

The event, which is being televised on cable channel Versus, will pass many of Sacramento landmarks including the State Capitol, the Capitol Mall and the Tower Bridge and should take about five minutes to complete. With the start and finish lines only blocks apart, spectators will not only enjoy the rare opportunity to see their favorite cyclists ride one at a time against the clock, but they can watch them start and finish.

For 2 1/2 hours, the field of more than 125 cyclists will cover the prologue course by setting off at one-minute intervals. The cyclist with the fastest time will receive the Amgen leader jersey. The bike race is projected to attract around 10,000 spectators and have an impact of around $8 million to our local economy which is good news to hotels and restaurants.

Kings Korner

The Kings (11-41) lost another road game on Sunday this time in Oklahoma City. The Kings wasted an outstanding effort from point guard Beno Udrih. The Kings lost 116-116 to the Thunder after overcoming a 19-point first half deficit in which Beno scored 22 of his 29 points in the second half.

The Kings retired Chris Webber's No. 4 on Friday night by hoisting C-Webb's jersey to the rafters joining the likes of Oscar Robertson, Nate Archibald, Bob Davies, Maurice Stokes, Jack Twyman, Sam Lacey and Mitch Richmond.

It was an "Un4gettable" night for longtime Kings Fans who witnessed a touching half-time presentation by Vlade Divac, Doug Christie, Mateen Cleaves, Scot Pollard and the Maloof brothers Joe and Gavin.

The bad news was the Kings ended up losing 111-107 to Utah before a sold-out crowd but if you missed the memories of the Kings they are planning to retire Vlade Divac's number at the March 31st game against New Orleans.

With the Kings on pace to record the franchise's worst record don't be surprised to see Sacramento make a couple of trades before the Feb. 22nd deadline. Rumor around the league keep whispering that the Suns are shopping around Amare Stoudemire and his two-year contract worth around $16 million per year. John Salmons and Brad Miller are player's

Foothill proves too much for RCHS

River City's varsity basketball team struggled on Friday to stay with visiting Foothill High, but ended up on the wrong end of a 60-40 score.

But one Raider had some good news this month: Yeveniy Dyachenko, a 6' 4" senior, was named the "ESPN RISE Cal High Sports State Boys Athlete of the Week" recently, according to Coach Jon West.

Dyachenko's highlights included a 38-point game against West Campus.

Also in Friday's action, the Foothill Mustangs prevailed against both the RCHS j.v. (71-58) and freshman (55-46) squads.

Carol Channing at Sac State

Carol Channing, world-renowned icon of musical theatre, will be the Guest of Honor at Sacramento State's 4th annual Green and Gold Gala, at 5:30 pm on February 20th in the University Union Ballroom.

Channing will be the featured speaker at the perennial fundraising event which honors its supporters and successes. She and her husband established the Dr. Carol Channing and Harry Kullijan Endowment for Arts Education scholarship for Sac State's performing arts students last April.

CSUS is located at 6000 J Street in Sacramento. For ticket information call 916-278-7043 or visit www.csus.edu/gala.

Banjo Rama

The Sacramento Banjo Band is holding its annual Banjo Rama on March 1st from 11:45 am to 5:30 pm at the Carmichael Elks Lodge, 5631 Cypress Avenue in Carmichael (near Manzanita and Cypress). The Banjo Rama provides an afternoon of happy music for the whole family and will be played primarily on the four-stringed banjos. Numerous bands will perform and food, refreshments and free parking will be available. The general public is invited to attend and a $20 donation is requested at the door. For more information, call 916-967-2318.

Widowed persons meet

The Widowed Persons Association of California meets regularly and also hosts numerous events throughout the year. If you are interested in more information about the association they are located at 2628 El Camino Avenue, Suite D-18 in Sacramento and their office hours are 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m Monday through Friday. They can be reached at 916-972-9722.

Alzheimer's Aid Society meets

The Alzheimer's Aid Society of Northern California Support Group meets on the first and third Thursdays of each month at its Sacramento office, located at 2641 Cottage Way, Suite #4. There will be share and care time at each meeting. For more information call 448-7001.

names that are being shopped around; of course, everybody wants Kevin Martin and Jason Thompson.

The Kings, who are last in the standing and league attendance and averaging 12,404 fans this season, will return to the Sacramento on February 18th to host Mike Bibby and the Atlanta Hawks.

Diamond Notes

The Giants added 45 year-old pitcher, Randy Johnson, to their starting pitching staff joining the young arms of Barry Zito, Matt Cain, Noah Lowry, Jonathan Sanchez and Cy Young winner Tim Lincecum. The G-Men also signed two relievers in Jeremy Affeldt and Bob Howry to shore up their leaky bullpen. In the field the Giants added a new shortstop in Edgar Renteria and have offered ex-White Sox Joe Crede a job at third base.

The Oakland A's also added some bulk to their roster by acquiring two power hitters in Jason Giambi and Matt Holiday and addressed their weak bullpen with pitchers Michael Wuertz and Russ Springer.

The A's Triple-A affiliate, the River Cats have announced their 2009 season schedule and defense of their back-to-back PCL and Triple-A Baseball championships. The Gatos will open the season on Thursday, April 9th when they host the Tacoma Rainiers (Triple-A affiliate of the Seattle Mariners) at Raley Field at 7:05 p.m.

Tickets for this game are currently available only through the purchase of River Cats Full Season Tickets, Mini Plans and group packages. The Cats Season Tickets, Mini Plans and group outings can be purchased at the Raley Field Ticket Office and by calling the River Cats Ticket Hotline at (916) 371-HITS (4487).

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It is recorded in historical notes of the 19th century that the Reverend Francis Henry Egerton, Earl of Bridgewater, made a habit during the last years of his life of sitting down to a formal dinner every evening with a dozen guests. This might not seem odd until you learn that the guests were all canines, seated in armchairs and with napkins tied around their necks.

• It was French military leader Napoleon Bonaparte who made the following sage observation: "In politics, absurdity is not a handicap."

• After his death in 2005, the ashes of Hunter S. Thompson, pioneer of gonzo journalism and author of the infamous novel "Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas," were fired spaceward from a giant cannon to the accompaniment of fireworks and the Bob Dylan song "Mr. Tambourine Man."

• It's been reported that the average lifespan of a tree in the metropolis of New York City is only seven years.

• Evidently, it's not just humans who associate a deeper voice with maturity (and desirability) in males. It seems that male owls try to appear more macho and attract females by lowering the tone of their hoots.

• Every year an organization known as the Diagram Group awards a prize to the person who submits the strangest title of an actual book that was published in that year. Here's a sampling of previous winners: "Proceedings of the Second International Conference on Nude Mice," "The Theory of Lengthwise Rolling," "High-Performance Stiffened Structures," "Living With Crazy Buttocks," "Greek Rural Postmen and Their Cancellation Numbers" and "Butterworths Corporate Manslaughter Service."

• Records show that in England in 1552, William Shakespeare's father had to pay a fine for littering.

The Sacramento River registered 4 feet 2 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Last Wednesday evening a surprise party was tendered Miss Neville Korrel at her home on Fourth street. The occasion did not mean anything in particular, except a generous outpouring of good fellowship on the part of those who participated. Besides Miss Korrel there was present: Russell Crase, Lowell Russel, A. Henderson, Lester Higgs and Miss Emma Waldeck.

George Thomas has been at Knights Landing during the past few days investigating the condition of the blind pigs in that locality. Several years ago George refused to drink any more and since that time has become curious about the reasons that prompt other men to drink. In Knights Landing he expects to find the real cause of the trouble.

Yesterday August Cordoza was fined $50 by Judge Barry on complaint of his wife Domingo Cordoza for having beaten and abused her. He was arrested in Riverbank by Deputy Constable E. C. White and his fine was made large because it was not the first time that similar complaint had been made against him.

Residents of Riverbank have been complaining because some young men of the ditsrict owning motorcycles have been flying around at night at great speed and without using lights on their vehicles. Several lives have been threatened by these speeders and this warning is sent out advising the guilty ones that the speed cop of Yolo County will be called in to make arrests unless the speeders desist or use lights on their vehicles.

Last Wednesday evening J. Smith of Riverbank while on his way home in his automobile made a short turn on Bryte avenue, so short that a well known light car that he was driving upset and rolled into the ditch. Little damage was done him, but a few repairs will be necessary on the car.

Louis Caffero has nearly completed the razing of the old Riverbank Inn in preparation for the erection of a new and costly hotel. The lot on which the Inn was situated is being raised several feet with filling taken from outside the levee at Rocky Point. When this is completed the lot will be higher than the paved highway fronting the building.

Tony Borzone has taken over the management and ownership of the Washington Hotel from Tim Tonelli and his partner. The deal was confirmed on Nov. 19th, since which time Tony has been running the place with great satisfaction to his many friends in this locality. Tony is well known here and in Sacramento and many who know him will be glad to see him enhance in welfare in this splendid way. He intends to run the Washington Hotel strictly within the law and asks the co-operation of his friends and neighbors.

John Borzone has just returned from Riverbank, Stanislaus County, where he was the owner of the Santa Fe Hotel in that town for a period of three weeks. He made a quick turning, selling the place and cleaning up some ready cash.

Joe Beltrami has nearly recovered from a severe "roll with Lizzie" in which he was caught about ten days ago on the H street road in Sacramento County. One foggy evening, with two Washington friends, he was out scouting when they were run down by a big touring car. The Ford rolled over and all three were somewhat bruised, but not very badly. They have entered a suit for damages against the owner of the touring car.

Joseph Nutting of Hollister has gone to El Dorado County after stopping off here for a visit with his sister, Mrs. H. H. Godfrey.

Mr. and Mrs. Elma Forest have returned from their honeymoon and will make their home here.

Mrs. Esther Newton, who has been ill, is recovered and again about.

J. R. Williams has returned to Rio Vista after spending a few days with his family in Washington.

Mrs. M. Ellis, who has been ill for the past two months at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. T. Rickard, is slightly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Thomas and Mrs. Ella Carson have returned from a short visit with relatives in Elmira.

Miss Ethel Cook has returned to San Francisco after spending the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Cook.

A Christmas program is in preparation by the pupils of the Washington Sunday School. Mrs. F. L. White, Jr., and Miss Ardella Manchester are in charge of the entertainment.

Pupils of the seventh and eighth grades of the Washington school too the half-yearly examinations sent out by the County Board of Education last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Attractive posters to advertise this evening's dance have been made by the pupils of the fifth and sixth grades of the Washington school.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Sanchez and children have returned from spending Thanksgiving at Pleasanton with relatives.

J. A. Spencer of Atwater is a guest for a few days at the T. E. Sanchez home.

Miss Selma Braun and Elmer Forrett, both of Washington, were married Thanksgiving Day in Sacramento by Rev. Bryant Wilson of the First Baptist Church. Only a few intimate friends were present at the wedding. The young couple spent their honeymoon at the Bay cities.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cameron and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. White, Jr., have returned from Wheatland, where they were Thanksgiving guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jasper.

Herman Garber has returned to Redding, after visiting for a few days with relatives in Washington.

A. M. Cameron, adviser of the Eighteenth Corps, the boys' organization of the Washington Community Church, last night entertained the boys with a wiener bake at his home. Those present were: Francis Bennett, Kenneth Wan Deren, Dwain Palm, Will Crowe, Fred Hart, Earl Chambers, Lloyd Crenshaw and Elmer Crenshaw. The boys of the Eighteenth Corps will aid Mrs. A. M. Cameron, who is in charge of the Red Cross drive in this district, and Francis Bennett was appointed Captain for this purpose.

GREAT WESTERN POWER EXTENDNG LINES TO LISBON DISTRICT

Electric power will be available within the next two weeks to all residents south of Glide's Landing in the Lisbon District.

The power line crosses the river at Glide's Landing and is being extended southward along the levee as far as Clarksburg with the idea of extending farther later on.

An extension may also be built northward through West Sacramento to the rice mills and other factories in this district.

Farmers in the Glide district will be glad of this extension because while their lands have never needed much irrigation the convenience for power and lighting will be appreciated.

Where water for irrigation is necessary pumps will be installed along the levee with motors as their operating power.

BRYTE DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT, DEC. 10, WILL BE BIG AFFAIR

One of the series of fortnightly dances that are being given by the Bryte Improvement Club will be held Saturday evening, Dec. 10th, in the Bryte school and promises much for the Improvement Club.

The purpose of these dances is to raise funds to pay for a lot on which a Town Hall is to be built subsequently.

Most of the funds have already been raised through these popular dances and the Bryte Improvement Club anticipates that all of it will be raised at the big masquerade which will wind up the series on December 31st.

For this dance a regular 5-piece orchestra has been employed and the ladies of the club promise some surprises in the way of side issues.

The committee of arrangements consists of F. Murray, C. Noyes, E. White, E. Rollins, J. L. Freeze, W. Treloar, Rube Lee and H. C. Bell.

AUTO DRIVERS WARNED AGAINST BREAKING SPRINGS

At the foot of the incline to the Southern Pacific bridge several deep chuckholes have developed within the past two weeks or since the Southern Pacific employes have been told to take no further care of that spot.

Sacramento and Yolo Counties pay an annual amount for maintenance of the bridge and the inclines at either end. Until two weeks ago this was done regularly either by the track gang or by the watchman at the Third street crossing. Then those watchmen were told to take no further care of the roadway at the end of the incline, with the result that deep chuck holes have developed that are dangerous to all automobiles that are passing there.

The sharp turn at the end of the bridge results in the tearing out of the gravel immediately next to the concrete and if this is permitted to continue without repair the results may be disastrous.

Yesterday Supervisor Leinberger said he was going to take immediate steps to have the question of mtaintenance settled.

PHYSICIAN ARRESTED ON DRY LAW CHARGE

San Francisco, Nov. 29.—Dr. E. R. Morlan was arrested today by prohibition officials on a charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law the officials complaining that in a drug store raid here last Saturday 22 blank prescriptions were found signed with his name. A large quantity of liquor was seized in the raid.

BENEFIT DANCE TONIGHT AT SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

To-night in the school auditorium a benefit dance will be held for the purpose of raising funds with which to hold a public Christmas Tree on or about Dec. 23rd.

The Parent-Teachers Association will have charge of the dance and will have refreshments and entertainments in addition to the social

This was the only method that suggested itself to raise funds for the christmas tree and the ladies intend to make it as enjoyable as possible for everyone who wants to attend.

They feel that a public Christmas tree is a necessity for t,here are many poor children who would not know what Christmas meant if they were not invited to something of this character.

Good music will be furnished for the dance to-night and the price of admission is so seasonable that everybody can afford to attend.

Floor managers will be E. Moss, E. Curry and J. Noyes; doormen, A. A. Dassonville and I. K. Manchester; candy counter, Mrs. S. T. Rickard and Mrs. Fred Moser; coffee and cake booth, Mrs. M. Buckley and the Misses Loupe and Mary Ortiz. A good dance orchestra has been engaged for the occasion.

It is a sad reflection on the town of Bakersfield that permission has been asked to use rowboats on some of the streets.

Bits & pieces

Congratulations to the West Sacramento Historical Society for helping to create "California Registered Historical Landmark No. 1040."

That landmark will be dedicated on April 1 on the city's northeastern riverfront (the "Washington" part of "Broderick"). It will recognize the "first Pacific Coast salmon cannery site," founded at that location in 1864 by the firm of Hapgood, Hume and Company. The small cannery started out on a barge on the riverbank, "starting" the salmon canning industry on the West Coast. It relocated to Oregon two years later due to declining runs.

West Sacramento has a lot more history yet to be recognized. Not all of it is savory, but most of it is pretty colorful.

This month, the Yolo County Health Department announced it is looking for a dog involved in a West Sacramento biting incident. Since the dog was a Dachshund, you can bet that news stories won't mention the breed's name in the headlines the way they would if it had been a "pit bull." It's just not as sexy to say a child was "injured in a Dachshund attack."

Pity poor Oscar Villegas, city councilman temporarily on crutches.

Oscar was playing hoops at the new city recreation center with the energy of a much younger man when he was taken out of the game for a while after contact with an opposing player (a local chiropractor who shall remain nameless). No word if a foul was called, but the two players remain on jovial terms.

Letters to the Editor

Where are the SLCs?

I am writing this letter in response and agreement with a letter in the News Ledger last week by Irene Eklund regarding SLCs (proposed "small learning centers") at the new high school.

For nearly five years many of us in the community along with WUSD staff members, have questioned many issues regarding the new high school. While the issues are too numerous to get into, the fact remains that the district went way over on the budget and regardless of what they are telling people, the numbers don't add up to the costs that were reported out at school board meetings as well to the Bond Oversight Committee meetings. Since the original design was shown by the architect, DLR, soon after the bond was passed in 2004, many of us stepped up to the podium at meeting after meeting (along with many letters to the editor), expressing our concerns with the SLC concept/design/cost, to no avail. We were usually put down for having an opinion other than theirs.

We were also told over and over again that the design was "program driven" around the SLCs and that is what pushed the cost up so high over our budget as well as what effected it taking nearly five years to build. Yet they refused to even consider changing the design regardless of the fact that the actual bond the voters passed was for a "contemporary" high school with a theatre. The theatre was only left out of the design when they decided to go out for the more recent bond, that was suppose to be for the K-8 implementation.

While the Assistant Superintendent in Educational Services and the Superintendent did make modifications with the design to correct issues that made no sense, such as the chemistry labs which were originally located upstairs (regardless of what the teachers tried to tell the Board before 2006) but there was never any public discussion of the elimination of SLCs.

Another question that's not being answered is what happens with the grant money from the Gate's Foundation we were given to implement SLCs? While I realize some of the money was for training and preparation for the SLC concept, we were told by the former Director of Facilities that we couldn't back out of the SLC concept (and with regard to the design issue) because we would lose a large part of the grant if we did not follow through with it. No one has addressed that issue.

What happens now since we didn't go with the high school being an SLC? I am a parent with a child in the high school that attends nearly all board meetings and I don't

	+		÷		5
	−		x		4
x		+		x
	+		÷		3

PICK OF THE WEEK

"Changeling" — Angelina Jolie gives an award-winning performance as Christine Collins, a single mother living in 1920s Los Angeles who challenges a corrupt police department and is brutalized as a result.

Based on an actual case, the story revolves around the disappearance of Collins' 9-year-old son. She files a report with the LAPD and for five months nothing is done. After some public pressure is put on the department, the LAPD picks up a kid found in Indiana and tries to pass the child off as Christine's son — despite the fact that the boy's dental records don't match, he's shorter, uncircumcised and all of the kid's teachers say "It's not the boy."

Collins confronts the LAPD, who respond by saying that she has become mentally unstable due to the abduction of her child and should be placed in a mental institution. So, they throw her in the looney bin, where she undergoes some pretty horrible treatment.

Although this isn't Clint Eastwood's best directorial effort ("Unforgiven" still holds that spot in my book), "Changeling" is a compelling and heart-wrenching motion picture.

ALSO

"Religulous" — Comedian Bill Maher stars in this documentary about his journey around the world, where he confronts and questions leaders and followers of the major religions about the tenets of their faith. Telling people their religion is a joke and that their god doesn't exist is a touchy and awkward subject for a film. Maher's smugness doesn't really help the situation, which made the film for me, at times, unwatchable. That said, I know a lot of people who have seen the film and say they enjoyed it quite a lot, so I'll leave it up to you.

KIDS AND FAMILY

"High School Musical 3: Senior Year" — I have not seen this movie. I will never see this movie. That's because I am neither a 10-year-old girl nor gay. But, I know it's going to sell a bajillion copies, and all you parents out there will have to go out and buy it for your kids, so I'm letting you know that it'll be out on Feb. 17. There. I've done my part. You have my sympathies.

I Live Here
By Mia Kirshner, J.B. MacKinnon, Michael Simons and Paul Shoebridge
(Random House, $29.95)
Reviewed by Katy B. Olson

Chechen refugees, Burma's sex workers, Juarez's murdered teenage girls, Malawi's AIDS orphans. While infomercials and human-rights campaigns remind Americans of the shadows within which these people live and die, the details of their everyday lives — their ambitions, hobbies, secrets — are murky and underreported, leaving them without a face. "I Live Here," a collection of four notebook like volumes covering each of these troubled regions, is not just a rising voice, but also a vibrantly painted canvas. As a study in storytelling, the work creates, and sometimes resurrects, the three-dimensional lives of these little-known people through sketches, photos, poetry, artwork and interviews.

In Mali, the authors speak English with a 12-year-old girl who doubles as head-of-household for her parentless family of nine; in Ingushetia, they listened to the sad music of a teenage pianist, plagued by dreams and the destruction of her former home. The authors imagine the pink and white quinceañera of Claudia, a young woman believed to be murdered in crime-ridden Juarez; they record the daily routine of a 24-year-old Burmese prostitute who longs only to have a baby and a factory job. More than simple stories, these accounts are infused with the character and spirit of each person.

Upon hearing that, in Malawi, the life expectancy is 46, there are 1.6 doctors for every 100,000 people and that 550,000 children have been orphaned by AIDS, the authors admit: "[We] can't connect with any of these statistics. A statistic is forgettable. It's never going to move you in the way human contact can." Yet separated by miles and lifestyles, in the absence of human contact, readers have "I Live Here" to reveal to them with beauty and candor stories nearly too painful to bear, yet too connected to our own lives to ignore.

Jill Jackson's HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD ... Keanu Reeves' next film outing is "Cowboy Bebop," a live-action movie based on the popular Japanese anime series. Reeves will play Spike Spiegel, a former member of a crime syndicate and now bounty hunter who pilots the spaceship Bebop. And try these names at your next spelling bee: Ken Uchida is animation director, Shinichichiro Watanabe and Keiko Nobumoto are associate producers, and Masachico Winami is production consultant. The aforementioned make spelling "Keanu" a breeze.

Joaquin Phoenix is setting out on a new career. He is giving up acting (for a while) to become a rapper, and Casey Affleck is going to make a documentary about the journey. And did you know Joaquin's given name is Joaquin Rafael Bottom?

Aside to Hannah K. of Mobile, Ala. Indeed, Gwyneth Paltrow is still active. However, her first priority is always her two adorable children, Apple and Moses. She now wears her hair very, very blonde and very, very long and straight. When her next movie comes along, I'll let you know.

Now, loping into Oscar, wouldn't it be fun if both Brad and Angelina won the little fellow. Then they would not only have a house full of kids, they would be well on their way to having a house full of Oscars. ... And still on the subject of the little fellow, can you name the only person in Oscar history to direct both his father and his daughter in Academy Award performances? That would be John Huston. He directed his father, Walter Huston, who won best supporting actor in 1948 for "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," and his daughter, Angelica, who won 17 years later for "Prizzi's Honor." ... Can you name two performers, NOT from silent films, who won Oscars for playing roles in which they never spoke? Jane Wyman won a Best Supporting Actress Oscar for her portrayal of a deaf mute in "Johnny Belinda," and Sir John Mills also won the supporting actor Oscar for his portrayal of a village idiot who never spoke a word in "Ryan's Daughter." Marlee Matlin played a deaf mute in "Children of a Lesser God," but she did utter some word-like sounds.

Keanu Reeves

In other news from Glitterville, you'll be seeing Cher with a whole new look in "The Drop Out," a comedy about a 30-something career student who is kicked out of his parents home, and so decides to get in good with a 60-year-old woman who lives next door so he can keep his gear (TV and such) in her house. Caught in this mix is the woman's ne'er-do-well son, who is looking for a father figure even though both men are the same age. We'll have to see how this idiotic premise plays out.

BITS 'N' PIECES: Tom Cruise said playing the role in "Valkyrie" fulfilled a childhood dream of slaying Hitler. ... Every time I see Steven Spielberg win another award, I think of the young director of "Jaws" sitting next to me, nervously biting his fingernails when he was about to receive his very first award: The Hollywood Women's Press Club Award for "Newcomer of the Year." ... AND didya know Oscar was named by Margaret Herrick, a director who said the statuette "reminded her of her Uncle Oscar."

South of the Border Stuffed Toast

If you like a little "heat" in your food, then you'll enjoy this breakfast dish for National Hot Breakfast Month. It will warm you inside and out.

- 8 (3/4-ounce) slices Kraft reduced-fat Cheddar cheese
- 8 slices reduced-calorie bread
- 2 eggs, beaten or equivalent in egg substitute
- 1/4 cup fat-free milk
- 1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
- 1 cup chunky salsa (mild, medium or hot)
- 1/4 cup Land O Lakes no-fat sour cream

Place 2 slices Cheddar cheese between 2 slices of bread. In a medium bowl, combine eggs, milk and parsley flakes. Dip sandwiches into egg mixture on both sides. Place on hot griddle or large skillet sprayed with butter-flavored cooking spray. Brown on both sides. For each serving, place 1 sandwich on a plate, spoon 1/4 cup salsa over top and garnish with 1 tablespoon sour cream. Serve at once. Serves 4.

Hearty Mushroom-Barley Soup

A real rib-sticker. Get a head start by cooking the barley the day before, then cool and refrigerate until needed.

- 3/4 cup pearl barley
- 8 cups water
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 stalks celery, cut into 1/4-inch thick slices
- 1 large (12 ounces) onion, chopped
- 1 1/2 pounds mushrooms, trimmed and thickly sliced
- 2 tablespoons tomato paste
- 5 carrots, peeled and each cut lengthwise in half, then crosswise into 1/4-inch slices
- 2 cans (14 1/2 ounce each) beef broth
- 1/4 cup dry sherry
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

1. In 3-quart saucepan, combine barley and 4 cups water; heat to boiling over high heat. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 30 minutes. Drain.

2. Meanwhile, in 5-quart Dutch oven, heat oil over medium-high heat. Add celery and onion; cook, stirring, until golden, about 10 minutes. Increase heat to high; add mushrooms and cook, stirring occasionally, until liquid has evaporated and mushrooms are lightly browned, 10 to 12 minutes.

3. Reduce heat to medium-high; add tomato paste and cook, stirring, 2 minutes. Add barley, carrots, broth, sherry, salt and remaining 4 cups water; heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer until carrots and barley are tender, 20 to 25 minutes. Makes about 12 cups, or 10 first-course servings.

• Each serving: About 133 calories, 4g total fat (1g saturated), 1mg cholesterol, 684mg sodium, 21g total carbohydrate, 5g protein.

The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Backpack Lunches

During the school year, I'm faced with the same dilemma every day — what am I going to pack for my son Lorenzo's lunch? Fortunately, help for my lunchtime quandary arrived by mail in the form of a new cookbook called "Real Food for Healthy Kids" by Tracey Seaman, head chef of the test kitchens for the "Everyday With Rachel Ray" magazine, and Tanya Wenman Steel, editor in chief of the award-winning food and recipe Web site Epicurious.com. While both women have stellar culinary backgrounds, the daily challenges of preparing healthy meals for their own children were the catalyst for this wonderful cookbook.

As I read through the cookbook, I made note of the great lunch recipes I want to try. All the recipes include a nutritional analysis and have been kid-tested by children of all ages from around the U.S. "Real Food for Healthy Kids" also celebrates fruits and vegetables through creative, kid-friendly recipes. When children aren't taught about the beauty of fresh vegetables, they miss out on an important connection to the earth and the flavors that make food so phenomenal. While a child's picky palate is the focus of each recipe, adults will also enjoy the diverse menus.

The cookbook also contains a wealth of helpful information about preparing meals for children with health issues. Author Tracey Seaman's 13-year-old son is autistic, and her daughter is on a gluten-free diet. Seaman provides simple recipes and mealtime solutions for common health problems and food sensitivities based on her first-hand experience.

"Real Food for Healthy Kids" is like a modern, family-oriented version of "The Joy of Cooking." The cookbooks have a similar feel, right down to the quirky line drawings. This is a wonderful recipe resource for parents and children alike created by two culinary professionals and working mothers who firmly believe in the power of good food.

CALIFORNIA-STYLE TUNA SALAD ROLLS

- 1 can (6 ounces) light tuna fish, preferably packed in water, drained and flaked
- 3 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 1/4 teaspoon wasabi paste or freshly ground black pepper, to taste*
- 2 (10-inch) flour tortillas
- 2 medium leaves Boston lettuce
- 1 Kirby cucumber, peeled and coarsely shredded lengthwise (without seeds)
- 1 medium carrot, peeled and coarsely shredded
- 1/2 of a ripe avocado, peeled, pitted and sliced 1/2-inch thick

1. Combine the tuna, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise and wasabi paste or black pepper in a small bowl and mix until blended.

2. Lay the tortillas on a work surface. Spread 1/2 tablespoon mayonnaise on each tortilla and arrange the lettuce on top of both; arrange cucumber, carrot and avocado lengthwise in rows near one edge. Spoon the tuna in a line next to the vegetables (away from the edge). Snugly roll up each tortilla into a cylinder. Cut crosswise in half.

*Wasabi paste is available in the Asian section of the market.

Q. I loved the series "Firefly," especially its star, Nathan Fillion. What is he doing now? —Hannah J., Englewood, Fla.

A. The handsome Canadian actor, who will turn 38 next month, is currently starring in the ABC drama "Castle." Nathan portrays author Richard Castle, who is enlisted by the NYPD to help solve a murder that appears to be copied from the scenarios in the murder/mystery books that his character writes. While the show is classified as a drama, it draws upon the '80s hit show "Moonlighting" for its romantic-comedy inspiration. Nathan also starred as Captain Hammer in the Internet sensation "Dr. Horrible's Sing-Along Blog," along with Neil Patrick Harris.

Q. I've missed seeing Rosie O'Donnell every day on "The View." What has she been up to lately? What can I see her in next? —Marissa B., via e-mail

A. Rosie recently executive-produced and starred in the Lifetime Original Movie "America." The movie is based on the critically acclaimed young-adult novel of the same name by E.R. Frank. The film follows the touching journey of a 17-year-old boy named America as he traverses the foster-care system. Rosie stars as a therapist who gives America the support he needs to deal with his troubled past and helps him find the courage to live.

Rosie told me that she was inspired to make the movie after reading the novel on a flight from New York to Los Angeles in 2002. Rosie explains: "As I was reading the book, I could see the movie in my head, and I knew that I had to make this movie. By the time I got home to New York, I had already written the movie." You can catch "America" on Feb. 28 at 9 p.m. ET/PT on Lifetime Television.

Q. I just wanted add my opinion to the subject of what I am looking forward to this year in entertainment. I am looking forward to Kate Winslet winning an Oscar. —Tandy in Pennsylvania

A. I am pulling for her as well. Although I have a feeling that dark-horse Anne Hathaway might come away with the big prize for her startlingly powerful turn in "Rachel Getting Married." We, along with the rest of the world, will find out on Feb. 22 at 8 p.m. ET/5 p.m. PT. I'm also looking forward to watching the gorgeous and talented Hugh Jackman host it!

Q. How long has Denzel Washington been married to wife Pauletta? How did they meet? —H.W., Decatur, Ala.

A. Denzel and Pauletta Pearson Washington have been married since 1983. They met on the set of the 1977 made-for-television movie "Wilma," which also happened to be the first on-screen role for both actors. Together they have four children — two sons and two daughters. Their eldest son, John David, played for the St. Louis Rams for the 2006-07 football season.

understand the lack of communication if we weren't going through with the SLCs. It's these types of issues that makes people feel as though the district is hiding things or doing district business behind closed doors when they don't communicate or answer our questions when we ask them.

In closing, I find it interesting the progress the City College is making as shown in last week's front page of your paper. It's amazing the amount of work that's gotten done in such a short amount of time. I wonder if it will come in under or right at what its budget was set at? Just some food for thought when you compare the amount of time and the amount of money spent to build the new high school. Hope people can make it to the next school board meeting to see what is happening with our tax dollars.

Majority should decide

California still has no state budget and is about to issue I.O.U.'s, since the state is nearly broke. After supposedly balancing last year's late budget, we are somehow over $40 billion short of a balanced budget for the next fiscal year. That's what happens when our leaders try to borrow our way out of debt.

Our state's required 2/3 budget vote is matched by only Arkansas and Rhode Island and is even stricter than Congress' 60% rule. We must wonder how much money we lose in federal grant allocations when we cannot provide state matching funds in a timely fashion. We need the mere majority rule, like the other 47 states have.

Many local folks will suffer for lack of funding for state-mandated programs.

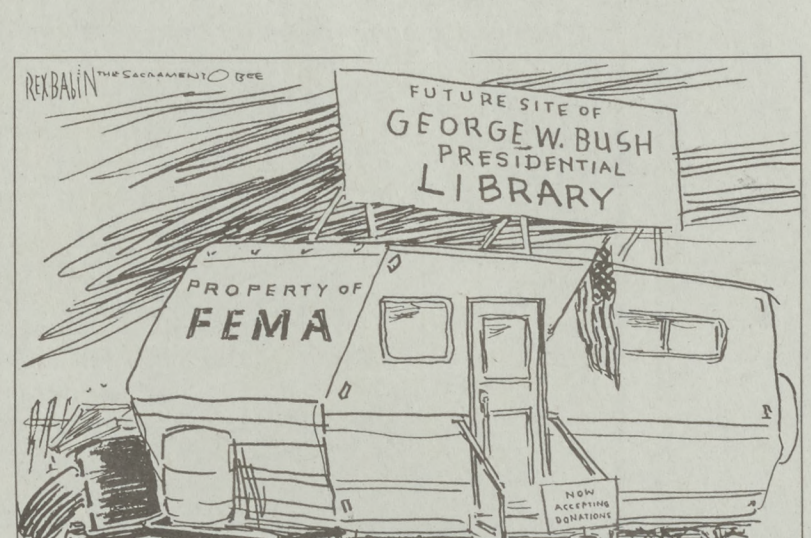
FIVE GENERATIONS

The Cecchetini clan -- with roots in West Sacramento -- had the rare honor of being able to assemble for a photograph of five generations of the family recently. BACK ROW: Jeff Cecchettini, grandfather; Judith Cecchettini, great-grandmother; and Diane Cecchettini-Martin, grandmother. FRONT ROW: Jeff James Cecchettini, father, with baby Trinity; Harold Rowell, great-great-grandfather; and Carolyn Martin, mother, with her daughter Jennifer Martin.



Eye on Health
Vision Loss Help

(NAPS)—A new resource may help millions of people who are living with vision loss. It's a Web site designed for adults who are blind or have low vision, along with their families, friends and the professionals who work with them. It offers many low-vision safety tips:

- Mark the edges of cabinet doors with brightly colored fluorescent tape to make it easier to detect when open.
- Mark the leading edge of the first and last steps with reflective tape that contrasts with the background color of the floor or landing.
- Use a reversible black-and-white cutting board in the kitchen to provide contrast.

The site can help with locating vision-related rehabilitation services and professionals.

- Float a brightly colored toy or sponge in the bathtub to help determine the water level and avoid overflow.
- Install dimmers on lamps with incandescent bulbs to control illumination level and glare.

In addition to tips, the site, called VisionAWARE, offers a wealth of free information on topics such as finding ophthalmologists and optometrists for treating eye conditions and locating resources for improving life with low vision.

The Web site was developed with support from Reader's Digest Partners for Sight Foundation. For more information, write to info@visionaware.org, go to www.visionaware.org/coping or call (914) 528-5120.
